Dalila Butler enlists members for the new private club at the House of Blues in Philadelphia, a job that entails hectic days spent touring the venue with prospective clients, attending shows, and producing exclusive events. Here, she reveals the hometown shops and resources that never let her down. —Emily Hsieh

Rescue Rittenhouse Spa "I'm running around like a maniac all the time, so my skin can start to look tired. I come here for the amazing facials, and I never leave without buying beauty products to bring home. I'm addicted to the Valmont cream mask." 255 S. 17th St., 215-772-2766
